Richmond Community College will have a whole new look for both returning and new students this fall semester. Two construction projects on the Hamlet Campus are wrapping up in a few months; the new facility in downtown Rockingham is springing to life; and the expanded Scotland County Campus continues to be fully equipped for students this fall.

In Hamlet, the Hugh A. Lee Building has a grand new entrance that will place Student Services and the Career & Transfer Center front and center as people come on to campus. Farther back on campus, a café overlooking the lake has been added to the Lindsey-Petris Building and will serve as a meal hub and hang-out for students in between classes.

"We are excited to welcome students back to Richmond-CC this fall whether it's on campus or through our many online offerings," said Dr. Dale McInnis, College president.

Sport shooters invited to take aim for college fundraiser

Richmond Community College will hold its fifth annual Clay Shooting Classic on Tuesday, Oct. 13, giving sports men and women a chance to compete on one of the most exciting sporting clay courses you will find.

The Clay Shooting Classic at DeWitt's Outdoors Sports in Ellerbe will kick off at 11:30 a.m. with registration and lunch for participants and volunteers. Teams will begin shooting at 1:30 p.m. on the mile-long sporting clay course with 14 stations.

Also back by popular demand is the "flurry" tournament, where participants test their shooting skills in a "flurry" of 50 skeets. Shooters are encouraged to come early for a flurry practice session. The flurry tournament will begin at 12:45 p.m.

"The staff at DeWitt's Outdoor Sports always does a superb job of making this a great experience for all who participate, and we look forward to having another successful fundraiser for student scholarships at RichmondCC," said Dr. Hal Shuler, Associate Vice President of Development.

The "flurry" challenge has been a popular feature of the clay shoot. Participants test their shooting skills by knocking down a flurry of skeets.

"Our goal is for everyone to have fun at this event, while helping us make college more affordable so more students can achieve their career goals."

The clay shoot raises money for one of RichmondCC's largest and fastest growing scholarships, the Working Scholarship program. The Working Scholarship helps offset the cost of tuition and books for working college students whose income makes them ineligible for federal and state financial aid.

Cost to sign up for the clay shoot is $800 per team and $200 for an individual. Cost for the flurry tournament is $100 per team of four and $25 per individual shooter. Sponsor packages are available for businesses and organizations.

Entry fee includes ammo, shotgun (if needed), lunch before and dinner after the competition, goody bag and hat. Entry fee also includes a $50 raffle ticket for a John Deere Gator, plus other prizes.

To sign up for the Clay Shooting Classic on Oct. 13, call Dr. Shuler at (910) 410-1807 or whshuler@richmondcc.edu.

NEW COLLEGE

“While we have many new exciting buildings going up, we also have used the time this summer to put all the proper precautions in place to keep our students and employees safe. We are open and ready to safely serve you.”

While many colleges and universities have made changes to housing, meal plans and face-to-face classes this fall semester, RichmondCC will continue to offer day, evening and online classes with the individualized attention it’s known for.

“We can help students who are considering staying close to home this fall stay on track for their bachelor’s degree at an affordable cost,” said Director of Career & Transfer Services Patsy Stanley. “RichmondCC has transferable college classes and co-admission pathways with several major universities.”

RichmondCC’s co-admission programs include:

- Pirate Promise – East Carolina University
- Spartan Passage – University of North Carolina-Greensboro
- C-STEP – University of North Carolina
- Pathway to Excellence – University of North Carolina-Wilmington
- $10,000 Degree Pathway Partnership - Fayetteville State University
- Aggie Plus Program – NC A&T State University
- Brave Step – University of North Carolina-Pembroke

RichmondCC has also expanded its short-term training programs to help streamline the time people spend getting credentials to entering the workforce. Short-term training classes include electric lineman, welding, small engine repair, income maintenance case worker, banking fundamentals, truck driving, industrial mechanics, medical billing and coding, medical office administrative assistant, and nurse aide, to name a few.

The Covington Street Building in Laurinburg is now a part of RichmondCC’s Scotland County Campus. The building houses the SEARCH program, as well as general college education classes.

SIGN UP NOW FOR CLASSES

Fall semester for college classes begins Aug. 19. Short-term training classes run at different times throughout the year. To learn more or schedule a time to meet with a counselor, call (910) 410-1700. Explore all the services and programs offered at RichmondCC by visiting www.richmondcc.edu.

Finish For Your Future! Finish For Your Career! Finish For Your Education! Finish For Yourself!

Richmond Community College has kicked off a community-wide effort to help people without a high school diploma “finish for their future.” Part of the plan includes up to $1,000 in scholarship money for students who complete the Adult High School Diploma or High School Equivalency program and continue on at RichmondCC for further education or career training.

Earn your high school credentials and increase your earning potential!
